Where the Coppers Go.

— We take the following from the Guernsey Mail and Telegraph: — Sir, — There are parties who make a trade of importing Jersey copper in large quantities, which they put into circulation in this island. The public ought to be cautioned, as they will sustain a loss when the island gets glutted with these coins. Neither the States' officers nor the public banks will take them: why should the public? — I am, Sir, — A Subscriber.
